

Fact Sheet 1 -- Air Travel

Conference Centre at the University of Waterloo in Waterloo, Ontario Canada. August 6-9, 2010

There are three airports that have flights into the area. The major airport is the Pearson International Airport (YYZ) <<http://www.gtaa.com/en/home/>> in Toronto. The local airport is the Region of Waterloo International Airport (YKF) <<http://www.waterlooairport.ca/en/>>, but it has only limited direct flight access. The third airport is the John C. Munro Hamilton International Airport (YHM) <<http://www.flyhi.ca/>> in Hamilton, Ontario, which also has limited flights by WestJet Airlines.

If you are flying to Warpstock 2010, you will probably like to fly in on Thursday, August 5, 2010 as this will give you time to get to the Conference Centre before the start of Warpstock 2010 early Friday morning. Warpstock will finish up at noon lunch on Sunday, so if you are going to fly out on Sunday, you will need to book a late flight to allow for travel time and the early security check arrival at the airport. It is possible to book an additional night at the Conference Centre and leave on Monday. You can also book an extra night and arrive before Thursday. See the registration page at <http://www.warpstock.org> for details.
